LOCH OF THE LOWES BREEDING SUMMARY

SITE	YEAR	MALE PARENT	FEMALE PARENT	CHICKS	RING DETAILS	NOTES
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2003	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	3		An unringed male arrived at the nest very early in the season, and was observed mating with Unringed Lady. Her previous partner returned several days later and chased off this rival male. Three chicks were successfully reared, however their paternity is unsure.
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2004	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	2	41 4H	One Chick died during ringing, cause unknown. 3A(99) Seen at Rutland. 2C(02) Seen Essex and Aberdeenshire Landmark return for bird of prey - First osprey chick's global debut
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2005	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	2		For the first time in her breeding history the female laid four eggs, a sign of excellent physical breeding condition. Two of these eggs hatched and the pair managed to raise them both to fledging.

SITE	YEAR	MALE PARENT	FEMALE PARENT	CHICKS	RING DETAILS	NOTES
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2006	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	1		Three eggs were laid this year and although they all hatched, overnight two of the chicks died/disappeared and only one chick was successfully raised. First osprey hatches in reserve
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2007	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	2		A new infrared camera was installed at the beginning of this year, allowing the ospreys to be monitored 24 hours a day. The male arrived back with a red ringed female although her identification could not be confirmed. The pair were observed mating until the arrival of Unringed Lady, when the male chased off his new partner and for the first time was observed displaying courtship behaviour in the form of a sky dance to win back her affections. The female laid three eggs, but the third chick died due to unknown causes, leaving two healthy chicks to fledge.

SITE	YEAR	MALE PARENT	FEMALE PARENT	CHICKS	RING DETAILS	NOTES
LOCH OF THE LOWES	2009	GREEN B ERIC	Unringed LADY	2		Three eggs were laid, all three hatched, the second chick died after only several days. This was thought to be caused by the very cold stormy weather which affected the male's fishing success, resulting in Lady only managing to feed herself and two chicks, both of which successfully fledged.
